	Master of Science Economics Study Field: Financial Economics			Advanced Module	2nd
Learning Outcomes	Students know about the theory of corporate finance (first 11 chapters of the Jean Tirole book); they have an advanced knowledge about the financial structure of firms, liquidity structure, corporate governance, mergers and acquisitions; they can construct own theory models; they can read and assess current theoretical articles in corporate finance.
Key Skills
Learning Content	During the course, we will do three things: go through some parts of the Tirole book on the theory of corporate finance, then (as an exercise) build own variations of the discussed models. Finally, see how the basic theory is applied in current financial theory. That way, the course gives an overview over corporate finance theory, but also increases the students' skills to write up own ideas. This will be helpful for the master thesis later on.
