Lernziele	Students obtain an understanding of the costs and benefits of operating hierarchies. They become acquainted with the factors that determine the architecture of hierarchical organizational forms. Moreover, students get to know possible solutions to coordination and motivation problems that may arise within hierarchies.
Inhalte	This course is concerned with coordination and motivation problems in hierarchical organizational forms. We focus on conflicts that are due to asymmetrically distributed or non-contractible information. Theoretical models that identify and analyze such problems are presented and discussed in class. In particular, we consider issues related to the acquisition of knowledge and the delegation of decision rights within hierarchies.
